Beer and Pub News

Both Derby and Amber Valley CAMRA were well-supported this year, with a total of 45 pubs taking part. The Derby winners were the Smithfield, who have also won the South Derbyshire POTY, with the Flowerpot finishing 2nd, while in Amber Valley the Angels Micro Pub, Belper won the Trail, closely followed by the Red Lion, Ripley. All pubs receive Certificates. Ed

Ashover, another visit would have been in order, but sadly I didn't get the chance. On Wednesday 12th June I went to the Barley Mow to visit the mini beer festival, I counted some 19 beers, that were not all on at the same time, but rotated, so when sold out it was replaced by another, with 4 or 5 ales on at one time. I started with the great ridge followed by summer sovereign boy from peak ales, I finished off on the black as your hat 6.2% from burton town brewery. I returned a couple of days later to try the orchid vanilla 3.8% from east London brewing co. Future plans involve brewing beer at the pub, wishing them good luck with that. Hoping that there will be another festival next year Charisma.

mini beer festival. Beers I sampled included east london-orchid&vanilla mild 3.6 -peak-great ridge 4.5 -storm -brainstorm 4.5-blue monkey-blubarb and custard 4.8-storm-silk of amnesia 4.7 plus regular whim hartington ipa 4.5 all on gravity from cellar at £3-30p pint and many now served in smaller casks of pins for fast turnover and it's a joy to see this classic gem busy and doing so well again. The Didler.

The Meet the Brewer nights at the Red Lion, Ripley are proving popular, the next two being Derby Brewing Company on August 5th and Amber Ales on September 2nd. Tweedle Dee Supporting local Beer Festivals

I made two visits to the Dead Poets beer festival on the 23rd & 24th may. There was a selection of festival beers on the main bar and on a stillage, some 25 in total. The beers were from Hampshire, Sussex, Wiltshire, Somerset, and Gloucestershire and some a bit nearer to home, Derbyshire, Staffordshire and Warwickshire. I sampled the e.p from brew studio, woodsie bitter from hammerpot, the she sings sea shanties from fallen acorn, the type 42 from irving and finally the c.o.b. from hop kettle, hope this is not the last festival at the Dead Poets. During the same bank holiday weekend I managed to get to the Furnace festival. There was an interesting range of some 20 real ales to choose from, I decided to try the longrock 3.8% from harbour, this was followed by the wilde child expatriate 3.8%, before finishing off on the jack of all trades from vocation 3.8%. There was also a selection of keg beers, and a selection of ciders from Darley abbey and

Strong rumours abound that the Queen's Head Kimberley will shortly become a trad pub again, with a full refurb and that Colin Gibbin from the Mellows mews micro pub in Eastwood is to take it on.

The Barley Mow Kirk Ireton is now open all day Saturdays and Sundays (April till end of September) and has seen increased trade. The pub is also brewing its own Barley Mow Brewery beer from a shed on the rear yard but only 2 firkins per week at the moment brewed by husband of landlady's daughter who travels up from London weekly to brew this 4.1 bitter. The pub now sells first class proper Cornish pasties and various pies, and it recently hosted its first

Extensive building work is being carried out at the Pear Tree, Ripley, and it looks like the long-proposed extension is taking shape, although the recent wet weather has hampered progress. There don't appear to be any internal changes as yet, the original plans suggested that the small back room, or snug, is to be extended, and an extension from the side of the pub up to where the garage used to be is to be built. I will report on further progress. Ed

Lincoln Beer Festival trip

Catching the 11-29am train from Nottingham I bumped into Ray Kirby who was on same train heading to Newark beer festival to tap all the beer's ready for its beer festival there the following day. I arrived in Lincoln 12-21 with a short walk up to the Drill hall and first time I had been for many years, to find a busy festival with around 100 ales inside met Andy Morton from Sheffield, Eastwood Johnny, David from Nottm CAMRA, Julian from Bingham, Anthony from Leicester, ticker's Julie and Andy from Sheffield, so plenty of good company. Ales sampled Lincolnshire-great tom 3.7-Round corner-lazars 4.1-Poacher's-trembling rabbit 3.4-Crafty little brewery-apex predator 3.8-Bateman's-pilgrim father 4.4-Cheddar-bedstraw 4.4-Cheeky imp-lunar tick 3.8 all in great condition. At around 3pm across the road to Jolly brewer's and mini beer festival here had half Crouch vale-falcon 3.8 (G) £1.70p in good order and sat in beer garden on this lovely sunny day, I then decided to stretch the leg muscle's up steep Ludlum hill and into Adam & Eve half of Wadworth's-burnt orange 4.5 £1-80p very good, further up the hill to the left and into Morning Star half of Otter ale 4.5 £2 again nice drop in cosy little pub it was then a short walk to Struggler's for a half of Pheasantry Light dragon -3.9 £1.70p and just ok in here, I followed road down to Burton road chippy for haddock and mixed open and sat outside enjoying them. From here I walked back towards Struggler's and almost next door to Victoria half of Brampton-golden bud 3.8 £1-95p and decent ale and sat outside in this sunny weather. I made my way down the hill back to train station. I almost missed my train as it unexpectedly came in and out on the incoming platform I'd arrived on, so a mad dash over the bridge to catch it 6-35pm just got it..Nottm 7-30pm and just had time for half of Flipside mild 3.6 in Barrel drop micro pub £1-60 p with camra discount in remarkably good nick and mild sticker to add to mild trail, only one in here was bus driver Glynn Robert's who can reel most bus times instantly. The Didler

A day out in Leek

On my bank holiday Bald Eagle and myself were fortunate to join the regulars from the Burnt Pig in Ilkeston on a bus trip to leek. We arrived in Leek around 11.30, and let loose on the town until 5pm. On the way to the Green Dragon the Wetherspoons pub, to get something to eat, we called into the titanic pub the roebuck for a shifty half of white star & cherry dark. We had to return to the Wilkes head as it was closed when we first tried it, so then it was onto the market place to try the Hydes pub, but this was closed. Next door we found the beer dock which sold bottled beers and beer on craft and keg on tap. Next we went to another new pub the old mill smoke house, which was very close to the bus station, the pub was impressive with a rustic feel about the place, we both had the house beer, brewed by whim old mill bitter, the Wilkes head was next and now open and I had the hartington ipa, which was in good nick and Bald Eagle had the ruby red house porter, as the dan engel did'nt open till 4pm, it was a visit to the fountain were the oracle and the north star porter went down a treat, and just across the road was the micro bar the earl grey where the olicana pale ale was sampled, on the way to the dan engel we took a detour and tried the blue mugge, which sadly was closed, just enough time to call into the cock inn the joules pub for a couple of halves, at the dan engel the Belgian bar, bibble and jaipur went down well, just enough time to call into the smoke house again before catching the bus. On the way home we called into the queens vaults in Ashbourne and the old oak at Horsley Woodhouse. Good pubs, good beer, and very good company all helped to make it a cracking day out. Many thanks to Simon and Leslie for making it all happen. Charisma

Bolton Wanderer

On the morning of June 8th armed with a Derbyshire Wayfarer and a GM Wayfarer I set off from Derby train station on the 8.15 to Sheffield where I had about half an hour to wait til the 9.14 to Manchester. From there I got a connection to Bolton and arrived at 11.40-ish.

(I would have arrived earlier had I not got off the right train thinking it was the wrong one!). My first port of call was the GBG JDW Spinning Mule where there were 10 hand pumps and I started off with Ossett Yorkshire Brunette, which was in good order. I then went across to the Northern Monkey but it was just before 12.00 and not yet open so I had a swift half in the Northern Way (all 3 pubs being on the same square). There was a reasonable selection of 4 beers for saying it was more like a sports bar and I went for Wily Fox Skylark. I then decided to get the 471 bus out to the GBG Ukrainian Social Club where after several presses of the intercom I was just about to give up when the door unlocked. Three beers were on offer here with Bank Top Palamino Rising being favoured

Rather than wait for the bus back I decided to brave the rain with my parasol and walk to the GBG Old Man & Scythe where I found 4 wickets on the go and Robinson Right Beer: Right Now in fine form. Then it was the 125 Gold bus out to the GBG Bunbury's, which is a bottle shop-cum-micro pub with 3 ales on offer of which I went for a local brew, Holy Well Space Between The Ears. I then got the same bus back to the town centre and called in the GBG Hen & Chickens to find 5 beers on hand pump of which I chose Bowland Hen Harrier and tried to dry off a bit. I had a look at the statue of Fred Dibnah, Bolton's revered son (which bore a passing resemblance to Eric Morcambe but without the flailing limbs) on the way to the GBG Great Ale at the Vaults where (once I'd found it) there were 4 Squawk beers on hand pump, with for Corvus Stout being favoured, a lovely drop indeed. Now the Old Three Crowns looks fantastic from the outside but inside it is just a characterless hole but there was Lancaster Blonde on hand pump so I partook before moving on to the GBG Elephant & Castle where of the 5 ales on offer I went for Bank Top Pavillion Pale. Barristers Bar was next and there was a selection of 8 mostly pedestrian beers but Bateman Pilgrim Fathers was a new one on me so I went for that, unfortunately I nipped to the toilet and lost my bearings and couldn't remember where I'd left it so I moved across the road to the Churchgate where of the 2 ales Moorhouse Penhul was preferred. Finally I headed back to the Northern Monkey where there were 4 of their beers on and I sampled Dirty Harry and Film Club and both were top notch - Rodders

Ashford & Bakewell Visit 13th June

I took the Transpeak bus from Derby which takes just over an hour to reach Ashford. I was alarmed when the bus failed to turn into Ashford as it did before but it goes past and enters the village in the opposite direction. I was just right for 1200 opening at the Bulls Head which is a typical Peak District village pub. This Robinson's pub surprisingly featured 5 cask ales; these being the standard Unicorn & Dizzy Blonde plus Wizard, Cascade & Stout. My Wizard was a decent drink at 3.7% and I enjoyed some conversation with a local couple who were the only others in the bar. Down the road at the Ashford Inn I found this to be largely focused on meals with numerous mainly retired people arriving for lunch and I found myself feeling a bit out of place here as a lone drinker. My Peak Ales Bakewell Bitter was not very good, needless to say I did not hang around to try Peak Chatsworth Gold or Black Sheep. Leaving the village by the A6 I soon left the road and followed a scenic path by the River Wye for about a mile before rejoining the A6 to enter the industrial estate at Bakewell. Thornbridge Brewery is about as far from the entrance as you can get and I eventually arrived at their Barrel Room which has a couple of cask ales, 7 keg ales and a range of merchandise. As the name implies there are many wooden barrels of special ales racked along one side and a series of tables set out for visitors, some of whom were on a brewery tour whilst I was there. I started with a couple of kegs - Green Mountain Hazy Session & Tart Sour, both of which exceeded my expectation then had a cask Lord Marples. The other cask ale was California Sun with the other kegs being Elio Summer Ale, Lukas Helles Lager, Big Easy Low ABV, Jaipur & Versa Weiss Bier. What a big concern Thornbridge is now and I was impressed with the offerings and the friendly service so would recommend a visit here. Walking into the town, there were several pubs either gastro or with moderate ale selection so did not even go in a few of them. At the Castle I had a disappointing Abbeydale Moonshine with other options of the usual 2 from Peak Ales and 3 from Greene King so will be in no hurry to return. The Red Lion had the same 2 Peak Ales but nobody behind the bar so I left without a drink. The Rutland Arms is a residential hotel but has a good bar area where visitors are made welcome and as I was the only person there chatted with the amiable barman over a decent Bakewell Bitter. They always have local ales and Chatsworth Gold and Jaipur were the alternatives this time. Across the road I made a 2nd visit to the newly opened Joiners Arms micropub. The same barman as previous was on duty and he recalled my prior visit, possibly not with great enthusiasm. I first had Torrside Candlewick Dark Stout which was excellent, followed by Aldwark Nostrum then Marble Manchester Bitter. The other casks were another from Aldwark and 2 from Thornbridge along with a range of kegs. I had intended to visit the Manners which is a Robinson's house but ran out of time before the return bus. This had been ok previously but would have been only the 4th pub worthy of a visit in my humble opinion. ChrisPDuck

Stapleford & Long Eaton

I recently got a lift to Stapleford and headed straight for the GBG Horse & Jockey where a choice of 13 cask ales was rather overwhelming with 3 from Black Storm, 3 from Beartown and one each from Stancill, Maxim, Littleover, Old Sawley, Black Iris, Full Mash and Bang The Elephant. Whilst enjoying the ales and a chat with the landlord I was surprised to be joined at the bar by a man with bare feet and very short shorts

Apparently he never wears shoes and has been 'booted out' of pubs before now. Along the road I changed by plan on seeing a very large group heading for the micropub so marked time in the JDW Sir John Borlase Warren. It was rather bland inside and out, also the cask ale selection too with only a Falstaff, a Lancaster and a Bagby (American) ale apart from a house ale from Nottingham and a couple from the Marstons stable. I then decided it was safe to try the Millipede micro and sure enough the large crowd was just exiting. It is very relaxing with sofas and coffee tables and a selection of 5 cask ales which may be taken as 3 thirds, which I did. The ales were all decent and from Magpie (2), 8 Sail, Acorn and Deeply Vale so I enjoyed my visit and chat with landlord and locals. Outside I caught a bus to Long Eaton which took me to the Sawley Junction micro, which was extremely busy. I fought my way to the bar for a selection from Abstract Jungle, Thorley's, Muirhouse, Black Iris, Beartown, Leatherbritches, Potbelly, Intrepid, Frome and Nottingham.

A most impressive variety and the landlady informed me that she was shortly starting brewing again; not that she needs to with this selection! Two very different new to me micropubs visited and I cannot fault either. Later dropped in to the York Chambers for a swift couple, to find Bagpuss behind the bar but did not let this spoil my trip. The Joiners Arms at Bakewell is a newly opened micropub in the town centre. It is nicely light and airy and features minimalist décor with some wood panelling having old woodworking tools built into the bar front. There are 6 handpulls albeit only 4 on when I called. I had Thornbridge Astryd which was deliberately hazy and quite decent. I also tasted Wild Weather Still Mooing, the Salt Alpaca and Cloudwater Stout were too strong for driving drinks. ChrisPDuck
